HOCKEY

Along with the NHL conference finals, another way to get your fix is with the CHL's Memorial Cup and the World Hockey Championships. Both tournaments offer intense exciting hockey with high levels of emotion from all involved. The Memorial Cup offers round robin play early in the week with the final scheduled for Sunday. The World Championships are already in the qualifying rounds with the finals also on Sunday.

NBA BASKETBALL Conference Finals

It is tough to break down the NBA playoffs so far. Cleveland and Lebron James are out, having lost to a veteran Boston team. The Celtics now face Dwight Howard and the Magic, who won the east last year. In the west, Kobe and the Lakers are in and so may be the fix. If the NBA wants one of their two marquee players in the Finals, it would take a herculean effort by the Phoenix Suns to advance.

UEFA CHAMPS FINAL

The Champions League final between Inter Milan and Bayern Munich takes place on Saturday from Spain. Tune in at 2pm eastern for what should be a thrilling match.

NHL HOCKEY PLAYOFFS Conference Finals

Four teams, seven games or less from the Stanley Cup. In the Western Conference Chicago looks to take the next step. After losing last year in the conference finals to Detroit, they hope to use that experience to venture past San Jose. The Sharks hope that their past playoff failures are behind them and that this is the year they live up to their strong regular season expectations.

Montreal continues to defy the odds. They knocked off both Washington and Pittsburgh, who were both heavily favored, with strong goaltending and timely scoring. And talk about defying odds, Philadelphia came back from a 3-0 series deficit and a 3-0 score in game 7 to break Boston's heart.
